

Technology services provider helps clients go paperless with ColumbiaSoft document management software

New collaboration with Resource One and ColumbiaSoft allows businesses to benefit from total outsourced technology solutions

Portland, Ore. – February 8, 2011 – Established IT services provider Resource One, Inc. is now collaborating with document management system provider ColumbiaSoft to offer clients expertise in improving efficiencies, reducing costs, boosting security and implementing environmentally sound business practices.

“For years, we have prided ourselves on working closely with our customers to understand the right total network solution for their precise needs, develop it together, and manage it long-term,” said Resource One founder and president John Pavlik. “Companies seeking an outsourced answer to their technology needs benefit from our high-caliber and timely support; this new relationship with ColumbiaSoft will further increase our client offering. Document management is really coming into its own; there is quite a demand for it. ColumbiaSoft’s Document Locator system enhances what we can bring clients—it’s easy to use, Microsoft-compatible, and increases efficiency, security, and control over documents.”

David Pogue, ColumbiaSoft executive vice president, added, “We’re thrilled to add a value-added reseller in the Portland area having not only a Certified Microsoft Partner status, but also an existing background in data management and an established reputation for excellent, proactive customer service.”

An electronic document management system is a business software application designed to digitally store documents into a repository. Documents can include everything from invoices to emails to contracts to health records, and more. Users can quickly query documents using a client application or web browser and retrieve the documents electronically on the computer screen. In today’s business environment, electronic document management helps companies reduce costs, increase efficiencies, and boost security. A document management system can also offer electronic routing of documents for approval, email archiving, records retention management, document scanning, optical character recognition (OCR), online collaboration with vendors and suppliers, disaster recovery, and reporting.
