

Prism Plus Consulting and ColumbiaSoft bring document control solutions to Florida’s medical device manufacturers

The combination of regulatory savvy and practical technology equips quality managers with a straightforward approach for FDA compliance.

Portland, Or and Oldsmar, Fl - March 8, 2012 – ColumbiaSoft, a leading developer of document control software, and Florida-based Prism Plus Consulting are working together to bring advanced regulatory compliance solutions to medical device manufacturers.

Mary McCoy, President and CEO of Prism Plus Consulting said, “Our firm is delighted to connect our expertise in regulatory compliance, operations, and quality with the solutions developed by ColumbiaSoft to offer a comprehensive approach for solving regulatory challenges.”

“There’s a natural synergy with the practical application of our document control platform and the acumen Prism Plus Consulting possesses in quality management,” commented ColumbiaSoft Executive Vice President, David Pogue. “Working together, our clients benefit from the best of both technology and expertise.”

Prism Plus Consulting is skilled in helping firms regulated by the FDA (Food and Drug Administration) improve operational efficiencies and meet stringent regulatory requirements. The firm’s strategic execution of compliance programs comes with the benefit of years of experience in information systems and technology, business process management, regulatory compliance and best practices, and project management.

Implementation of compliance programs requires tools to manage and automate document-centric procedures. ColumbiaSoft’s document control solutions built on the Document Locator platform manage documents and regulated processes with automated workflow, approvals, audit logging and more. The system integrates quality procedures such as corrective and preventative action (CAPA), change management, and standard operating procedures (SOP) within Microsoft Windows Explorer and Microsoft Office. This helps ease user adoption by embedding complex procedures within a familiar working environment.
